Cyber security in the Supply Chain & Logistics Industry
– How to protect your business from a cyber attack!

Following the launch of the SCLAA breakfast series event this week, the SCLAA team here in Vic/Tas have lined up another thought-provoking event for next month. Cyber attacks pose a massive threat to Australian Supply Chain, transport and logistics businesses with many high profile cases in recent years.

Join us again at Vertical Talent on Friday the 12th of April for another morning of networking and learning about another pressing topic in our industry.

How would your business respond to a loss of critical data or if you couldn't access your IT systems?

How would you respond to your clients having their confidential information stolen from your systems and do you know your organisation's responsibilities under the new Notifiable Data Breach laws?

Do you know the specific risks and weak points of your IT systems and have a defined risk management plan in place to minimise the potential damage to your business?

Join us to hear from Owen Johnson, an IT Executive and Cyber Security professional to explain why cyber-crime poses a major risk to every organisation, regardless of size and that a top-down leadership and risk management approach is necessary to combat the growing threat.
